“ Marcy and family-I was so sorry to learn that Dick had passed away in September. I worshipped with you at First Presbyterian Church in Harrisonburg. I also knew Dick from JMU as I worked in the JMU Office of Admissions from 1986-1995. Dick was always so kind, welcoming, and willing to help. I don't ever recall him without a smile and was unaware of his stellar leadership in the military. Nor did I know that we share the same birthday! I will keep you all in my prayers and hope that your faith and the presence of friends and family has been, and will continue to be, a comfort for you.

“ I was fortunate to serve with Dick in Southeast Asia. I flew a different aircraft than he did, but we were in the same unit, the Rustic Forward Air Controllers. I really got to know him later and appreciate his many talents as we, with several others, worked on putting together and publishing our unit history. What an accomplished individual....smart, funny and caring. My thoughts go out to Marcy and their family, and I pray the Lord gives them peace.

“ I was blessed to be Caregiver for Dick for the past year. We had so many fun and funny times together and I will forever remember! We took walks, had many breakfasts together, listened while he played his piano and rolled his eyes when I 'tried' to sing! Always happy and upbeat. Always being kind and loving to Marcy, although not remembering she was the lady he married and mother of their children. I will never forget Dick and the countless days we spend together. Because of Dick, I gained a family I will forever love... Marcy, Mike, Cathy & Wendy

“ Richard "Dick" Roberds will always be "Major Maj," to me. It has been 50 years since I served under Dick's command in Vietnam. Those were tough times but there was no doubt that Dick's mission was to look out for the safety and welfare of his young officers and lead them through their tour.

His leadership and example will stay with me always.

Wishing Marcy and family the very best during this sad timed and beyond.

“ I was saddened to learn earlier this week that my commanding officer in Vietnam, Col. (then Major) Richard M. “Dick” Roberds (USAF, Ret.), passed away last Friday in Tullahoma, Tennessee.

While at the time during 1970-71, as a young lieutenant when in Vietnam and flying most of our missions in Cambodia, I did my best to stay off Maj. Roberds' radar screen. However, following our mission's being mostly declassified in 1995 and attending our unit's reunions, Dick and I became good friends.

Over the years, I grew to have a far better grasp of the great responsibilities that he shouldered when overseeing a group of twenty-something lieutenants and a few captains in combat. He was a remarkable man, and we shared a number of wonderful times after the war.

After retiring from the Air Force, he became a university professor and concluded his notable career in academics at James Madison University. As I had a few clients stretching from Roanoke to Winchester, I always made a point of stopping in Harrisonburg to catch up over lunch or a cup of coffee.

Dick was an outstanding officer. His leadership and decisions made during war no doubt contributed to my being here today. He will be missed.
