“ The WHS Class of 63' is saddened by the death of Elizabeth - Betty to us also. She was a great, smart classmate. Prayers and blessings to you all. Mary Anne Bartlett Cruthirds and the Class of 1963.

“ I remember dancing in the living room on hot summer days. Sitting in the floor playing jacks. Holiday meals where all of us were together. The sheer volume of gifts under the tree at Christmas (there were four of us, afterall). Her wicked sense of humour. Always writing or reading.

Mom, I still write and I still read and you shared that and your love of all music with me. We didn't agree on everything, but I miss those days of carefree times.

And I'll miss you.

“ I remember when my brother and I were little she got us both a book for our birthday about our birthday. She loved getting us little things and reading to us. I can't remember the last time I saw her I just know I was little. Maybe 4 or 6 years old. She was a great woman and will be missed. Wish we would have been closer as I grew up but some things didn't permit that until recently when she found me on Facebook. Love ya Nana “ Liz's eldest daughter, Robin, was my best friend growing up. We lived at each others houses through much of our adolescent years. We were inseparable. Through that friendship came a love an friendship with Liz. She was like a second mother to me through those years.

She kept a humble home and managed the best with what she had. The door was always open. You just walked up on the porch and you'd hear a "come on in" through the screen. I would walk in and she would generally be in her chair with pen and paper in hand. Either writing a letter to a friend or a poem or a story. She was gifted with the written word. She also loved old movies and passed that love down to her daughter. I remember she thought Sam Elliot was gorgeous and couldn't help but think "that old guy?" LOL. But as an adult I can see what she meant. {smile}

There was one day in particular that we were sitting around in the living room and she was writing poetry. The 3 of us, she, Robin & I, decided to have a poetry contest. I spouted off our starting line - and we were all to take it from there... "There once was a day when the sky was gray and the earth was full of tears"

... In all my years I have never finished that poem. I have never been able to get passed the first line until now. Today is that day. Today is the day of tears.

She impacted lives. I will miss you Liz.

To her children - Robin, 'Dust', Sarah & Margaret ... hold on tight to each other. Put the past where it belongs and love each other fiercely!! Though we are miles... and years... apart, I will always feel a special bond with you. Don't ever hesitate to reach out. I love you guys.

“ I always liked it when she would tell stories of when we were younger like one where she would have parties and they would let me dance with them and how amazed they were when i kept the beat and time with the music or getting chased by dogs on the way home from Wynne Cinema,how it about broke my heart when she left for college.We didn't always see eye to eye but i could always count on her.I miss you so much Sis
