“ George was our neighbor around the corner but with adjoining backyards.
My favorite memory of George was during a motor changeout for one of my children's automobiles.
George checked on my progress day-by-day and observed an especially difficult day when I couldn't remove a stubborn part from the old motor. Later in the afternoon he returned with a tool that he had created from his workshop. This makeshift tool looked peculiar but it was exactly what I needed to reach in and break loose the part. I later used it again during re-assembly.
Thank you George for your ingenuity and sharing it with me. May you rest in peace.
