“ I am a server at Red Lobster, and looked forward to seeing Sherrie and her hubby “Santa Claus” Evans every Monday around 3pm. She was always very grateful of mine, and managements services to her and Santa. As our bond became stronger, we shared stories of family, and vacationing. She never missed an opportunity to talk about, and show me pictures of her beautiful grandchildren (I really hope they get to see this). Sherries love language, I believe, was gifts. Every Monday, she had something to give me haha. She even brought in the cutest raccoon stuffed animals for my son, and one of my managers daughters. She was also quite the jokester. So funny, I probably shouldn’t repeat online some things she told me of her “younger days”. She reminded me so much of my own grandmother, who passed in 2013. I have been saddened since Christmas Day, when I heard the news of her illness. But my heart is full knowing that she was able to spend time with her family that she loved so much for the holidays. And I am happy that she is no longer suffering. Her soul will forever live on through her family, especially her grandchildren. I will be celebrating her life, our memories, and the stories she shared with me over one of her favorite drinks... a top shelf margarita!!! Sending so much love, and so many prayers to the Evans family and beyond, to everyone who has been touched by Sherrie’s beautiful soul.
